CHASING HURRICANE ANDREW

Objective

The objective of this activity is to track the position of Hurricane Andrew for a period of 6 days and to distinguish between a hurricane watch and a hurricane warning issued by the National Weather Service.

John D. Schuster 2021

Background

Background

Hurricanes are the most destructive storms on earth. They develop from tropical storms (cyclones) and are classified as hurricanes when their winds reach 64 knots ( ~ 71 mph or 119 kph). Hurricanes include a small central region known as the eye, where the winds are light and there are few clouds. Moving out from the eye, a narrow band of intense thunderstorms, heavy rains, and strong winds is encountered. This band is called the eye wall. Beyond the eye wall are strong but diminishing spirals of the same weather. Hurricanes are huge storms. Typically they are about 500 km in diameter, and they usually last for a week or more.

Hurricanes contain tremendous amount of energy. They gather this energy from warm ocean waters in the tropics. As the warm, humid air rises, it cools and condenses, releasing heat (called latent heat). This heat warms the surrounding air, making it lighter and causing it to rise farther. As the warm air rises, cooler air flows in to replace it, causing wind. This cooler air is warmed by the ocean, and the cycle continues. This heat from warm ocean water is the fuel that hurricanes run on. For this reason, hurricanes diminish and die when they move inland or move into colder waters.

In addition to the high winds – gusts up to 172 knots (about 192 mph or 320 kph) – and the torrential rains, hurricanes produce what is known as a storm surge. The circular winds, together with the low-pressure eye and high-pressure outer regions of a hurricane, create a mound of water in the center of a hurricane. The storm surge causes considerable flooding and is responsible for most hurricane damage and deaths.

Weather satellites in orbit above the Earth can easily detect hurricanes. Satellite data, along with data from radar and aircraft, is used to follow developing hurricanes. Through tracking, we can tell where a hurricane has been. We also can estimate where it will go in the near future. When it appears that a hurricane is moving toward land, the National Weather Service (NWS) issues watches and warnings. A hurricane watch means that hurricane conditions are likely in the watch area within 36 hours. A hurricane warning means that these conditions are likely within 24 hours. People living in low coastal areas that could be affected by a storm surge need to evacuate as soon as watches and warnings are issued.

In August 1992, Hurricane Andrew caused a tremendous amount of human suffering and billions of dollars of damage in the Bahamas, the Southern tip of Florida, and parts of Louisiana. This hurricane was unusual because it struck the United States twice. After coming ashore
