Blue

Neutral

The blue neutral wire safely carries electricity away from appliances, preventing overloads. It's positioned at the circuit's end, receiving electricity after it passes through live and earth wires. The blue wire reduces the risk of electrical shock, but it should still be handled with care by electricians.

Brown

Active

The brown live wire delivers electricity to appliances, requiring a connection to earth and neutral wires. This ensures proper current flow and diversion in case of electrical problems. Electricians take measures to prevent electric shock by ensuring the absence of live current.

Green & Yellow

Earth

The earth wire, marked with green and yellow stripes, is a safety feature. It links to a metal casing, connecting cables and electrical devices to the ground. This diversion ensures that electrical surges are safely redirected, preventing harm to both appliances and people.
