Forces and Motion Read the passage carefully before answering the questions that follow. There are different ways that forces can act on an object. When multiple forces act on an object, they combine together to create a net force, which determines whether the object speeds up, slows down, or changes direction. Understanding how forces work is essential to explaining everyday phenomena, from a person walking to a rocket launch to a car's acceleration. Newton's first law states that an object at rest stays at rest and an object in motion stays in motion with the same speed and in the same direction unless acted upon by an unbalanced force. This means that if the net force on an object is zero, its acceleration is zero, and it will continue moving at a constant velocity or remain at rest. Newton's second law describes the relationship between force, mass, and acceleration. It states that the acceleration of an object is directly proportional to the net force acting on it and inversely proportional to its mass. This means that a larger net force will result in a larger acceleration, while a larger mass will result in a smaller acceleration for the same net force. Newton's third law states that for every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction. This means that if one object exerts a force on another object, the second object exerts an equal and opposite force on the first. This principle is fundamental to understanding many physical phenomena, from a person walking to a rocket launch. Search and select the correct answer for each question. 1. What happens when the net force on an object is zero? a. The object changes direction. b. The object stays still. c. The object accelerates. d. The object continues moving in the same direction. 2.
