Event Builder

The Event Builder application allows you to define zones, events, and BACnet Command Objects in your building system. Zones are the building resources (room, floor) that you can schedule, and events are the activities in your building that allow the HVAC equipment associated with the zone to be commanded to various states.

You can also use the Event builder to program the optimization of a zone and BACnet Command Object. By adding Start/Stop Time Optimization (SSTO) logic to the zone, you can conserve energy by starting heating or cooling as late as possible prior to occupancy and stopping heating or cooling as early as possible prior to vacancy. Night operation can also be defined.

You can use the Event Builder to do the following:

- define, modify, copy, and delete zones
- define, modify, and delete event definitions
- define, modify, and delete BACnet Command Objects
- enable and define zone and BACnet Command Object Start/Stop Time Optimization (SSTO)

Global Commander

The Global Commander application allows you to issue a single command to be applied to a selected group of points in the building system. For example, you can command a set of Terminal Equipment Controller (TECs) subpoints to a specific value in a single operation. You use the Global Commander to:

- command the value of a group of BACnet FLN devices, TEC, LTEC, UC, or Equipment Scheduling zone subpoints
- initialize a group of BACnet FLN devices, TECs or LTECs
- release a group of BACnet FLN devices, TEC, LTEC, UC, or Equipment Scheduling zone subpoints
- set the command priority for a group of logical points
- update the initial values of a group of BACnet FLN devices, TECs or LTECs
