

11. Based on the graphs you have drawn how does wing length compare between survivors and nonsurvivors? What about body mass?
12. What do the results illustrated by your graphs indicate about the effects of the drought on birds with particular wing lengths and body masses?
13. The Grants say in the film that a key trait that made the difference in survival for the birds during the drought was beak depth. Is that conclusion consistent with the data presented in this activity (including Part B)?
14. Explain why the Grants concluded that beak depth may have played a more important role in survival during the drought than wing length or body mass. Correctly use the terms natural selection, adaptation, and fitness in your answer.
15. Explain the role of variation in important traits (like beak depth) in a population for the survival of a species.
