

Processing the data file for a board game

Problem statement

A software application is required for processing a data file describing a generic square board for a board game like Snakes and Ladders. A board comprises cells numbered from 1 to  $N_{max} = N^2$  which form a square with a square side formed by  $N$  cells. An example of such board is presented below.

The rules can be found at

<http://learnenglishkids.britishcouncil.org/en/crafts/snakes-and-ladders>

A data file includes the list of cells which represent a transition between the cells. Each transition is described by a pair of integer numbers where the first number is a current cell number and the second number is a cell number the current cell is connected to. The second number is provided with a sign which indicates the direction of such transition. A positive number means that the player ascends from the second cell to the current on a ladder. A negative number indicates that the player slides from the current cell to the one marked by a magnitude of the second number down to the bottom of the snake. The data file terminates by the number  $N_{max}$  followed by zero.
