Type of soil affects plant growth

Smithers from the Simpsons thinks that a special juice will increase the productivity of workers. He creates two groups of 50 workers each and assigns each group the same task (in this case, they're supposed to staple a set of papers). Group A is given the special juice to drink while they work. Group B is not given the special juice. After an hour, Smithers counts how many stacks of papers each group has made. Group A produced a mean number of stack of stacks 31.7 (standard deviation = 12.0), Group B produced a mean of 42.3 stacks (standard deviation = 14.0).

What is Smithers' control group?

What is Smithers' experimental group?

Group B, the group who was given the special juice.

What is the independent (test) variable in this experiment?

The independent test variable in this experiment is the special juice.

What is the dependent (response) variable in this experiment?

The dependent response variable in this experiment is the amount of papers stapled.

How many replicates did each group have?

There were 50 replicates per group because there were 50 workers per group.

Which group showed more variability? How do you know?

The group that showed more variability is Group B because the mean and standard deviation is greater
