

Scoring the AP Physics-C Exams

The AP Physics-C exam has two parts and each part is graded and reported separately. These are known as the

a) Mechanics (Mech),

and

b) Electricity and Magnetism (E&M) exams.

Each exam consists of two parts. These are known as the Multiple-Choice (MC) and Free-Response (FR) sections of the exam.

Multiple-Choice Sections

Calculators may not be used during the MC sections of these exams.

The multiple-choice sections are given first and consecutively. Each MC exam is timed separately. Students may not return to the earlier section. Calculators are not allowed during the MC sections of the two exams. In truth, calculators would not be much help even if they were allowed. Each MC section lasts forty-five minutes.

Each MC exam consists of 35 questions and is worth a maximum of 45 points. There is a penalty for wrong answers. The raw score is computed as the number of right answers minus one-quarter of the number of wrong answers.

$$\text{RAW score} = \# \text{right} - \frac{1}{4} \cdot \# \text{wrong}$$

The RAW score on each MC section is converted to a score by multiplying by the appropriate factor to scale it up to the 45 points allotted to each section. If no questions were eliminated the factor is

$$45/35 = 1.2857 \quad \text{Therefore, on that section only}$$

$$\text{MC Score} = \text{RAW} \cdot 1.2857$$

Sometimes a question is eliminated from the scoring. This might occur because of an ambiguity in a question or in one of its possible answers. Sometimes the reason is highly technical and comes out of the analysis of the response profiles of the questions.

If, in a given year, one question is eliminated from a MC section, then for that section only, the factor is

$$45/34 = 1.3235 \quad \text{Therefore, on that section only}$$

$$\text{MC Score} = \text{RAW} \cdot 1.3235$$

Free-Response Sections

Calculators may be used, but not shared, during the FR sections of these exams.

The FR section of each exam consists of three questions and each question is worth 15 pts. The FR section of each exam is thus worth 45 points.

All questions in the FR sections have multiple sub-parts. The point distribution among the sub-parts is not listed on the exam. Each sub-part of a question will be assigned a point value but the points are not necessarily distributed equally among the sub-parts.
