Accounting Grade September 2013:

Making Things Valuable Martin Kornberger, Lise Justesen, Anders Koed Madsen, Jan Mouritsen, 2015-08-13 What if value is neither an intrinsic quality of an object nor a reflection of a subject's preferences but rather something that is organized and brought into existence through mechanisms, technologies, and practices of valuation? This edited book addresses the question of valuation theoretically and through empirical analyses of diverse objects of valuations such as university ranking lists, ice skating scoring, wind power, insurances, gold, and big data. The theoretical inspiration is interdisciplinary and the volume brings together scholars from economic sociology, accounting, organization studies, and science and technology studies with the aim of understanding through which practices and processes things are made valuable. Valuing is understood as a plural activity where pricing things is just one way of signifying value. Socio-economic reality is constituted through different orders of worth that are grounded in the way people praise and prize things. The book is arranged around five concerns that underpin the debate about making things valuable. These concerns are: calculating, economizing, commensurating, switching, visualizing, hiding, modelling, tracing, and knowing, disciplining.

The Political Economy of an Emerging Global Power L. Casanova, J. Kassam, 2014-06-03 Is Brazil ready to take its place among the world's leading powers? The authors examine Brazil's hard power and soft power resources, assessing the challenges the country will need to overcome in order to build its own Brazilian dream and project itself on the international stage.

The Inconvenient Generation Minhua Ling, 2019-10-22 After three decades of massive rural to urban migration in China, a burgeoning population of over 35 million second-generation migrants living in its cities poses a challenge to socialist modes of population management and urban governance. In The Inconvenient Generation, Minhua Ling offers the first longitudinal study of these migrant youth from middle school to the labor market in the years after the Shanghai municipal government partially opened its public school system to them. Drawing on multi-sited ethnographic data, Ling follows the trajectories of dozens of children coming of age at a time of competing economic and social imperatives and its everyday ramifications on their sense of identity, educational outcomes, and citizenship claims. Under policies and practices of segmented inclusion, they are inevitably funneled through the school system toward a life of manual labor. Illuminating the aspirations and strategies of these young men and women, Ling captures their experiences against the backdrop of a reemergent global Shanghai.

Credit Rating Governance Ahmed Naciri, 2015-01-30 Credit rating agencies play an essential role in the modern financial system and are relied on by creditors and investors on the market. In the recent financial crisis, their power and reliability were often questioned, yet a simple rating downgrade could threaten to bankrupt a whole country. This book examines the governance of credit rating agencies as expressed by their ability to fairly, ethically, and consistently assign higher rates to issuers having lesser default risks.

However factors such as the drive for increased revenue and market share the inadequate business model the inadequate methodology of assessing risk opacity and inadequate internal monitoring have all been identified as critical governance failures for credit agencies This book explores these issues and proposes some potential solutions and improvements This will be of interest to researchers and advanced students of corporate finance financial economics risk management investment management and banking
