Functional Anatomy of the Endocrine Glands

Gross Anatomy and Basic Function of the Endocrine Glands

1. Both the endocrine and nervous systems are major regulating systems of the body; however, the nervous system has been compared to an airmail delivery system, and the endocrine system to the Pony Express. Briefly explain this comparison.

The endocrine system acts slowly with hormones, while the nervous system uses the electrochemical impulse to bring about rapid control

2. Define hormone. Substance secreted by endocrine tissues into the blood that acts on the target tissue to produce a specific response

3. Chemically, hormones belong chiefly to two molecular groups, the steroids (fat soluble) and the amino acid-based (water soluble)

4. Define target cell. Cells within an organ that respond to a particular hormone are referred to as the target cells (also target) of that hormone

5. If hormones travel in the bloodstream, why don't all tissues respond to all hormones? _____

The ability of the target to respond depends on the ability of the hormone to bind with specific cellular receptors on cells plasma membrane or within the cell itself

6. Identify the endocrine organ described by each of the following statements.

Thyroid gland 1. located in the throat; bilobed gland connected by an isthmus

Adrenal glands 2. found atop the kidney

Pancreas 3. a mixed gland, located behind the stomach and close to the small intestine

Testes 4. paired glands suspended in the scrotum

Parathyroid gland 5. ride "horseback" on the thyroid gland

Ovary (F. gonads) 6. found in the pelvic cavity of the female, concerned with ova and female hormone production

Thymus 7. found in the upper thorax overlying the heart; large during youth

Pineal gland 8. found in the roof of the third ventricle of the brain
