Growth of Indian Foreign Exchange Market

Indian Foreign Exchange Market has grown exponentially since introduction of LPG Model in 1991. Simultaneously, the growth in international tourism has increased business volumes of Money Changers. On account of above the volume and complexity of transactions in both the retail and wholesale segments of the market have increased substantially.

The operations of Authorised Dealers have undergone a sea change during this period. Some of the landmark developments have been the changing vehicle currencies, the introduction and withdrawal of LERMS, the modality of calculating rates, introduction of current account convertibility etc.

During this period the Foreign Exchange Dealers Association of India (FEDAI) has played a significant role, helping market participants to assimilate the on-going changes to ensure a smooth functioning of the market.

- In reference to the case explain what has led to the increase in volume and complexities of transactions in different market segments? 2
