Code Check Electrical is a field guide to common code issues in residential electrical installations. It is based on the 2011 National Electrical Code—the most widely used electrical code in the United States—and the 2009 International Residential Code. Before beginning any electrical project, check with your local building department. In addition to a model code, energy codes and special rules from utility companies could also apply.

Each code line in Code Check Electrical references the two codes named above. Many building jurisdictions use older versions of the codes. If you are in an area that still uses the 2008 NEC, look in the “08 IRC” column of code references to see if the item applies in your area, and use the table on the inside back cover to see changes that were made in the 2008 NEC, 2009 IRC, and 2011 NEC. In places where the IRC does not reference a particular rule, the NEC rule might still apply, even where the IRC code is adopted. The IRC states that items not specifically mentioned in that code should comply with the NEC. This applies to issues such as old wiring, outside feeders, and photovoltaics, which are not covered in the IRC.

HOW TO USE CODE CHECK ELECTRICAL

Each text line ends with two code citations. The code numbers on the left, with straight brackets, refer to the 2009 IRC. The code numbers on the right, in braces, refer to the 2011 NEC. For example (from p. 4):

- Max 6 disconnects to shut off power _____ [3601.7] {330.71}

This line states that there can be no more than 6 disconnects to shut off power, and the rule is found in 3601.7 of the IRC and 330.71 of the NEC.

An “n/a” in a code line means the rule is not applicable to that particular code.

An “EXC” at the end of a line means that an exception—or exceptions—to the rule will follow in the next line, for example (from p. 12):

- Backed breakers secured in place EXC _____ [3705.5] {408.360}
- Output circuits from utility interactive PV inverter _____ [n/a] {705.1206}

Backed breakers must be secured in place per IRC 3605.5 & NEC 408.36, except that the NEC has an exception for photovoltaic circuits from an inverter. The “n/a” in the IRC column tells us this rule does not apply to that code. The list of abbreviations (to the right on this page) tells us that PV = photovoltaic.

Significant code changes are highlighted by a different color for their code citation, and the superscript note after them refers to the list on the inside back cover, for example (from p. 12):

- GFCIs req'd to be in readily accessible locations _____ [n/a] {210.8A}™

GFCI devices must be located in an area where they remain readily accessible (see definition in glossary on page 32). The rule is not in the IRC and in the NEC it is a change in the 2011 code, summarized as change #19 on the inside back cover [22].

Text lines ending in “OR” mean that an alternative rule follows in the next line, for example (from p. 17):

- Separate 20A circuit for bath receptacles only OR _____ [3709.4] {210.11C3}
- Dedicated 20A circuit to each bathroom _____ [3709.40] {210.11C3A}

A separate 20-amp circuit must be supplied for no other purpose than the bathroom receptacles. Alternatively, each bathroom can be supplied with its own 20-amp circuit, and then other outlets in that bathroom (such as lights) could be on that circuit.

In 1752, Benjamin Franklin, aided by his son, William, conducted the famous, but highly dangerous kite experiment. For an animated explanation, visit: www.codecheck.com/cc/08maLaw/TheKite.html
