

Is presidential disapproval associated with voting?

Marginal relationship (percentage points) between presidential disapproval and voter turnout

Source: Authors' analysis of Cumulative CSES-Capstone Content, Harvard Dataverse, V1.

Sample: All citizens 18 years or older.

Notes: In this analysis, we define disapproval rates as the proportion of the weighted sample who strongly disapprove and disapprove/somewhat disapprove of the president, while excluding any respondent who has never heard/not sure or neither approve nor disapprove. Data weighted to match using probability weights and the weight cumulative variable. We define voter turnout based on the CSES validated measure, such that non-voters encompass any respondent with no record of voting or no match to administrative records. We include controls for college graduation status, race/ethnicity, marital status, binary gender, work status, union membership, and home ownership.
