

Physical and Written Employment Test Information

More information: ebmud.com/jobs/job-resources

Plumber 1 roles and responsibilities require qualified applicants to pass both a written and a physical skills-based test for employment consideration. The percentage correct (or pass point) is not preset for written tests. The number varies with each recruitment.

Physical testing – There are 5 components to the physical test. Candidates are required to pass all 5 physical test stations in order to proceed to the hiring interview step.

Written testing – There are three major components of the written test – reading comprehension, math, and mechanical/spatial ability. The questions below and attached answer key are from the Plumber 1 written test and can be used as a study guide.

Section 1, Reading Comprehension which is made up of reading passages that you will interpret, apply or infer in the corresponding question to measure your understanding, application and analysis skills. Success with reading comprehension questions depends on your ability to obtain the answers from the reading selection and ability to distinguish the best answer from several multiple-choice answers.

Use the passage below to answer the corresponding multiple-choice reading comprehension questions:

Passage 1: Ventilation, as used in fire-fighting operations, means opening a building or structure in which a fire is burning to release the accumulated heat, smoke and gases. Lack of knowledge of principles of ventilation on the part of firemen may result in unnecessary accidents due to ventilation being neglected or improperly handled. While ventilation itself extinguishes no fires, when used in an intelligent manner, it allows firemen to get at the fire more quickly, easily and with less danger and hardship.

1. According to the above paragraph, the most important result of failure to apply the principles of ventilation at a fire may be:
 - a. loss of public confidence
 - b. disciplinary action
 - c. excessive use of equipment
 - d. injury to firemen
2. It may be inferred from the above paragraph that the chief advantage of ventilation is that it:
 - a. eliminates the need for breathing equipment
 - b. reduces smoke damage
 - c. permits firemen to work
 - d. cools the fire
