Learning: Theoretical Perspectives, Empirical Studies and Design Profiles Robert Cassidy, Elizabeth S. Charles, James D. Slotta, Nathaniel Lasry, 2019-07-11 This book represents the emerging efforts of a growing international network of researchers and practitioners to promote the development and uptake of evidence based pedagogies in higher education at something a level approaching large scale impact By offering a communication venue that attracts and enhances much needed partnerships among practitioners and researchers in pedagogical innovation we aim to change the conversation and focus on how we work and learn together i e extending the implementation and knowledge of co design methods In this first edition of our Research Topic on Active Learning we highlight two of the three types of publications we wish to promote First are studies aimed at understanding the pedagogical designs developed by practitioners in their own practices by bringing to bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research practitioner partnerships Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in between straddling the two worlds As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation

Eye Tracking for STEM Education Research: New Perspectives Pascal Klein, Martin Rusek, Maike Schindler, 2024-04-04 A modern approach to improving education uses the components of experimental scientific research practices based on objective data dissemination of results and the use of modern technologies STEM education research is maturing and new tools and analysis techniques become available As one example eye tracking the recording of persons eye movements has been growing in popularity as it enables researchers to study learning materials effectiveness problem solving and even students approaches during experimentation Eye movements as captured using eye tracking can reveal information about a student s attention and cognition on a process level going well beyond classical product based assessment techniques such as questionnaires or tests

Collected Papers of Carl Wieman Carl Edwin Wieman, 2008 Carl Wieman s contributions have had a major impact on defining the field of atomic physics as it exists today His ground breaking research has included precision laser spectroscopy using lasers and atoms to provide important table top tests of theories of elementary particle physics the development of techniques to cool and trap atoms using laser light particularly in inventing much simpler less expensive ways to do this the understanding of how atoms interact with one another and light at ultracold temperatures and the creation of the first Bose Einstein condensation in a dilute gas and the study of the properties of this condensate In recent years he has also turned his attention to physics education and new methods and research in that area This indispensable volume presents his collected papers with annotations from the author tracing his fascinating research path and providing valuable insight about the significance of the works Trends in Teaching Experimentation in the Life Sciences Nancy J.
