| Topic: Historical Thinking and Skills Historical thinking begins with a clear sense of time – past, present, and future – and becomes more precise as students progress. Historical thinking includes skills such as locating, researching, analyzing, and interpreting primary and secondary sources so that students can begin to understand the relationships among events and draw conclusions. | Pacing Unit 1, Content Statements 1-14, 18 weeks |
| Content Statement 1. The order of significant events in Ohio and the United States can be shown on a timeline. Learning Targets: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ I can construct a timeline of the significant events in Ohio and the United States. ▪ I can determine the difference in years between two events. | Content Elaborations Chronological thinking helps students develop a clear sense of historical time in order to recognize the temporal sequence of events in history. Students were first introduced to timelines in grade two. Grade-three students practiced chronological order by placing local events on a timeline. By grade four, students are able to construct timelines with appropriate titles, evenly spaced intervals for years, decades, and centuries, and events in chronological order. As students place events on timelines, they begin to understand cause-and-effect relationships among events and gain early experience with the conventions of BC/BCE and AD/CE. (Note: Students begin using these conventions in grade six.) In grade five, students will examine relationships between events on multiple-tier timelines. |
