

CHAPTER 10
POLITICS
CHAPTER 11

Answer the following questions as you read the chapter. Always, always use specific evidence from the text to support your answers. Underline words and lines as you go.

1. What were the consequences of the post-war political situation in the United States and the world?
The war created a new international order. The United States emerged as a superpower, and the world was divided into two main camps: the United States and its allies, and the Soviet Union and its allies. This led to the Cold War, a period of tension and conflict between the two superpowers. The war also led to the decolonization of many countries, as European powers lost their empires. This led to the emergence of many new nations, which often faced political and economic challenges.
2. In what ways has the United States led the world in the post-war period?
The United States has led the world in many ways. It has been a leader in the development of nuclear energy, space exploration, and the computer revolution. It has also been a leader in the development of the welfare state and the social safety net. The United States has also been a leader in the development of the international system, through its leadership in the United Nations and other international organizations.
3. Thinking about everything you have learned in this chapter, what do you think is the most important lesson of the post-war period?
The most important lesson of the post-war period is that the United States has been a leader in the world. This leadership has been based on a combination of military power, economic power, and cultural power. The United States has been able to shape the world in many ways, and this has led to the emergence of a new international order. This order is based on the United States and its allies, and it has led to the development of a new world system.
